

A Small Discourse on the Immutability of Natural Laws

Glenn Tramm II, BICT, MBA, FRC

*“Sky above me. Earth
below me. Fire within me”¹*

It can be regarded that when consciousness first manifested itself, it was the point in space-time that the Divine Source was contemplating on His next experience, considering that each new divine cycle sets the stage and prepares the cosmic forces for the next cosmic drama. As people create goals and experiences to be lived in their lives, and as the saying goes “as above so below”, so also does the Divine Source plan the next goals and experiences He wants to see before Him. In that same spirit, as each goal determines the rules imposed upon the self in order to communicate and guarantee the achievement of those planned goals and experiences, so the Divine Source embarks on the quest of giving direction and communicating His Will to the cosmos in order to guarantee the desired results. We recognize those directions as Natural Laws.

Can those Laws be changed? Of course, the short answer is No. Natural laws form part of the very fabric of creation and are therefore inseparable from it. From the highest beings in creation to the lowest, natural laws stays the same; albeit, they can be manifested differently depending on the plane of existence.

Nonetheless, humor me for a little longer for what I am about to discover. You might even ask yourself where my “chutzpah” came from to even think of such a blasphemous thought. If it is of any consolation, I was not the one questioning the legitimacy of natural laws, but I was merely a servant at the point of answering a question that my vulgar and mortal peasant was considering. Then my consciousness has been elevated to a point that I have come to grasp a reality far beyond my comprehension. It was that aha! moment to say the least. This reality, once understood, will render natural laws mutable from the point of view of the Divine. Anathema! - I said silently in the chambers of my mind. Then, after a little longer, my mind became receptive again. What I am about to convey to you, dear reader, came to me in a “blinking of an eye”.

Our whole being has been programmed to understand reality in the context of the Divine Source’s immanency. This is the reason, once we put our attention and devotion to understand creation, the Divine Intelligence itself becomes our teacher; therefore, marking the beginning of the reintegration journey of the dear “Hermit”.

However, the Divine is also transcendence. Although the Divine Consciousness is the highest in creation, the Divine Itself is far beyond these limitations. That being said, when the Divine decides to become an Immanent being – again, the triune expression of consciousness immediately emanates, namely;

- Thought-Form;
- Feeling or Will-Force;
- and Substance.

Through Thought-Form, the Divine Intelligence directs His Will-Force, forming within Himself the new goals and expressions He Wills. These ideas form the ‘new rules of the game’ so to speak, and thus the natural laws needed to direct, govern, mold and convey to creation the next adventure, are emanated. We become - thus, once more, the center of His attention – literally and part of the next cosmic drama.

“Thou hast no right but to do thy Will. Do that and no other shall say nay.”²
