

Lord of the Elements: Son of the Sun.

Glenn Tramm II., BICT MBA, FRC

“KNOW THERE IS but one God, the author, the creator, the governor of the world; almighty, eternal, and incomprehensible.

The Sun is not God, though His noblest image; he enlighteneth the world with his brightness, his warmth giveth life to the products of the earth; admire him as the creature, the instrument of God; but worship him not.”¹

When we say that He – whose name is known to be ‘YHSVH’ pronounced as “YeHoShuVaH” or Jesus Christ as many would address Him, walked on water, turned that same water into wine, healed the sick and raised the dead, we are admitting that this demigod performed ‘miracles’. Not only that, you can even say that His ‘miracles’ are borderline magic! A fantasy for many; a reality for others. Since the days of the Nazarene, no one ever, at least to my recollection, really came forward, except of course some charlatans, with the claims as bold as He had while performing the ‘miracles’ with such mastery as He did. He understood Natural Laws, which we, not having the full understanding of them yet, say that He performed ‘miracles’.

“Lord of the Elements”, a title I would designate to Him indeed - a True Master.

However, where comes the source of His Supreme Power? Before exploring some thoughts about this, allow me to share a piece of my experience with you.

Sometimes, on those rare occasions, we are given a glimpse behind the “high” curtains of truth in order to taste it in a purer sense. Me, trying to explain it, only weakens it to mere words, numbers and symbols – a frustrating feeling to say the least. However, as a tenacious Mystic, I am taunted to impart to you this sweet treat anyways.

My consciousness has been lately heightened to the point that I understand now that Scriptures, where so many religions are based upon, is meant to be interpreted in three ways, and thus introduces to us 3 levels of understanding;

1. Literal as in Physical – what is written is written. The Word is made flesh. We based our understanding purely on what has been read;

2. Meaningful as in Feeling – what is written has somehow a hidden and deeper meaning. Perhaps even from something beyond our senses, something more spiritual, concealed or connected to our Soul;
3. Conceptual as in Conscious – what is written is meant to be understood from a higher plane of understanding. Where things written and described become concepts, principles or patterns.

With this understanding, let's just visit a part of Scriptures so fascinating to me and at the same time, saying that it is strange, is an understatement.

“Surely I am more brutish than any man, and have not the understanding of a man. I neither learned wisdom, nor have the knowledge of the holy.

Who hath ascended up into heaven, or descended? Who hath gathered the wind (air) in his fists? Who hath bound the waters in a garment?

Who hath established all the ends of the earth? What is his name, and what is his son's name, if thou canst tell?”²

I will, of course, and to spare you the details, deduce the name for you – ‘YHSVH’. He gathers the air in his fist, bounds the waters in a garment, and establishes all the ends of the earth. But, wait! Where is fire? As the fourth element of fire is missing, let's entertain the following thoughts and perhaps create a deeper understanding of our reality.

The burning Sun, in all its splendor and magnitude, nourishes our life here on earth. That is a physical understanding of the Sun, the image of our true Creator, as the Sages declared and explained to us. In a deeper meaning, the Sun is considered, of reflecting the qualities of courage, burning desire or will power. On a conscious level it is considered correction, or (re)balance - which, the Son – ‘YHSVH’ is the personification and the embodiment of.

Giving Light, having will power, and being balanced –are requirements or pre-conditions for humanity before its reintegration with the Creator. Is it not true, then, that when Scriptures, talks about ‘YHSVH’, it is actually referring to us on a meaningful and conscious level? We, as a human race, need to be balanced and have the desire and courage to bring light to the world. Again, is it not true, then, that this Light, is the Supreme source of the physical ‘YHSVH’?

It is then, as the Kabbalistic writings hinted all along, that we should follow the Path of the Sun (Tiphareth) in order to have direct connection with our true Creator (Kether).

For those not versed in Kabbalistic writings, the message is simple; develop the qualities of being someone with courage, the will to pursue worthy endeavors and bring positive changes into the world.

We would collectively need to be 'YHSVH', which through the understanding of natural laws, would have the ability to gather the air in our fist, bound the waters in a garment, and establish the ends of the earth. In other words, it would bring the delayed and long-awaited evolution of our specie to fruition.

Be the Lord of the Elements, Son of the Sun.

For the world you might be just an individual, but for me, as one individual, you are the world. We are One and the same.

Written with love. Peace Profound.
