

The Sacred Gift of Beauty

Glenn Tramm II, BICT, MBA, FRC

“Beauty is in the eyes of the beholder”¹

Many, being accustomed with the above axiom – for it is considered self-evident, would argue that Beauty is subjective. Here again, after considering the many cycles I went through, I am about to utter and impart the words of wisdom to the neophyte. For Beauty is not subjective but objective.

Just before we dive into the precious gift given to humanity – Beauty, lets first explore two interesting polar opposite phenomena, mercy and judgment.

There is an immense amount of followers in the cult of mercy. I say cult referring to their cultural inclination to endlessly deal with every matter in terms of mercy. This inclination is well-known in religious congregations. They even dare to attribute this ‘mercy’ to that of the Creator. Maybe have they missed the point that the Creator gives mercy to those ready to change their behavior. Otherwise, what would be the point providing it? Having a world only governed by mercy will render it weak.

On the other hand, having a world only governed by judgment will render it severe. So there is no point having governmental entities or any other entities endlessly making man-made laws and punishing their subjects – another word for slaves while we are at it, through their so-called 'god-given' scepter echoed even today as their self proclaimed 'divine right of kings'. We can translate that very easily today as the 'divine right of governments' – a foolish pursuit, yet a harmful fact in modern day societies. For they are the same. They are two sides of the same coin. The latter is called The New World Order if we consider the Christian folklore. Before master-ship was vested in one, now it is vested in many. They consider themselves masters, the rulers, the law-makers, and guess who they consider their salves?

All this is possible because we have not consider Beauty. Humanity has not come to the real understanding of Beauty – Our Sacred Gift. Let alone be able to hone its Power. For there is Power in Beauty. It is the source of the true Power of humanity. Mercy and judgment is under Beauty's command. They – mercy and judgment, are the two polar extremes of Beauty where it resides inbetwixt them. The mystic considers this carefully, but for the uninitiated this is a far-fetched idea.

For carefully should you ponder on the idea of exercising sound judgment combined with due care. This is The Path all of us should follow. The Path is Beauty – it is Balance, which was addressed in Ancient Egypt as Maat (𓄎𓄌𓄀𓄃) in the sense of Order. Lo and behold! Verily verily, I say unto you, although our Sacred Gift is a seamless whole (𓄎𓄌𓄀𓄃), we seek substantial separation (𓄎𓄌𓄀𓄃) of these two – mercy and judgment but executed in Truth . For they are the tools of the Christos, the ones who are the light bearers, the true sons of the Ancient of Days.

It is in Beauty that all the nine realms bow and pay their homage. We, as a sentient race, are privileged to be given this Sacred Gift, although yet not matured still to employ it. Therefore, I implore you, dear proselyte, have mercy only when the subject is ready and willing to change and consider sound judgment only when the subject is stubborn and unwilling. For why should you be consider a tyrant, or even worse, a weakling? And, thus it becomes the mission of the aspirant to learn these qualities by bowing first to the nine realms. In other words, listen, learn, and obey Natural Laws first before you can be listened, and obeyed to. For herein lies the secret and source of your transformation and Power. Have I not given it freely?

For the world, you might be just an individual,
but for me, as one individual, you are the world. We are One and the same. Written with love. Peace Profound.
